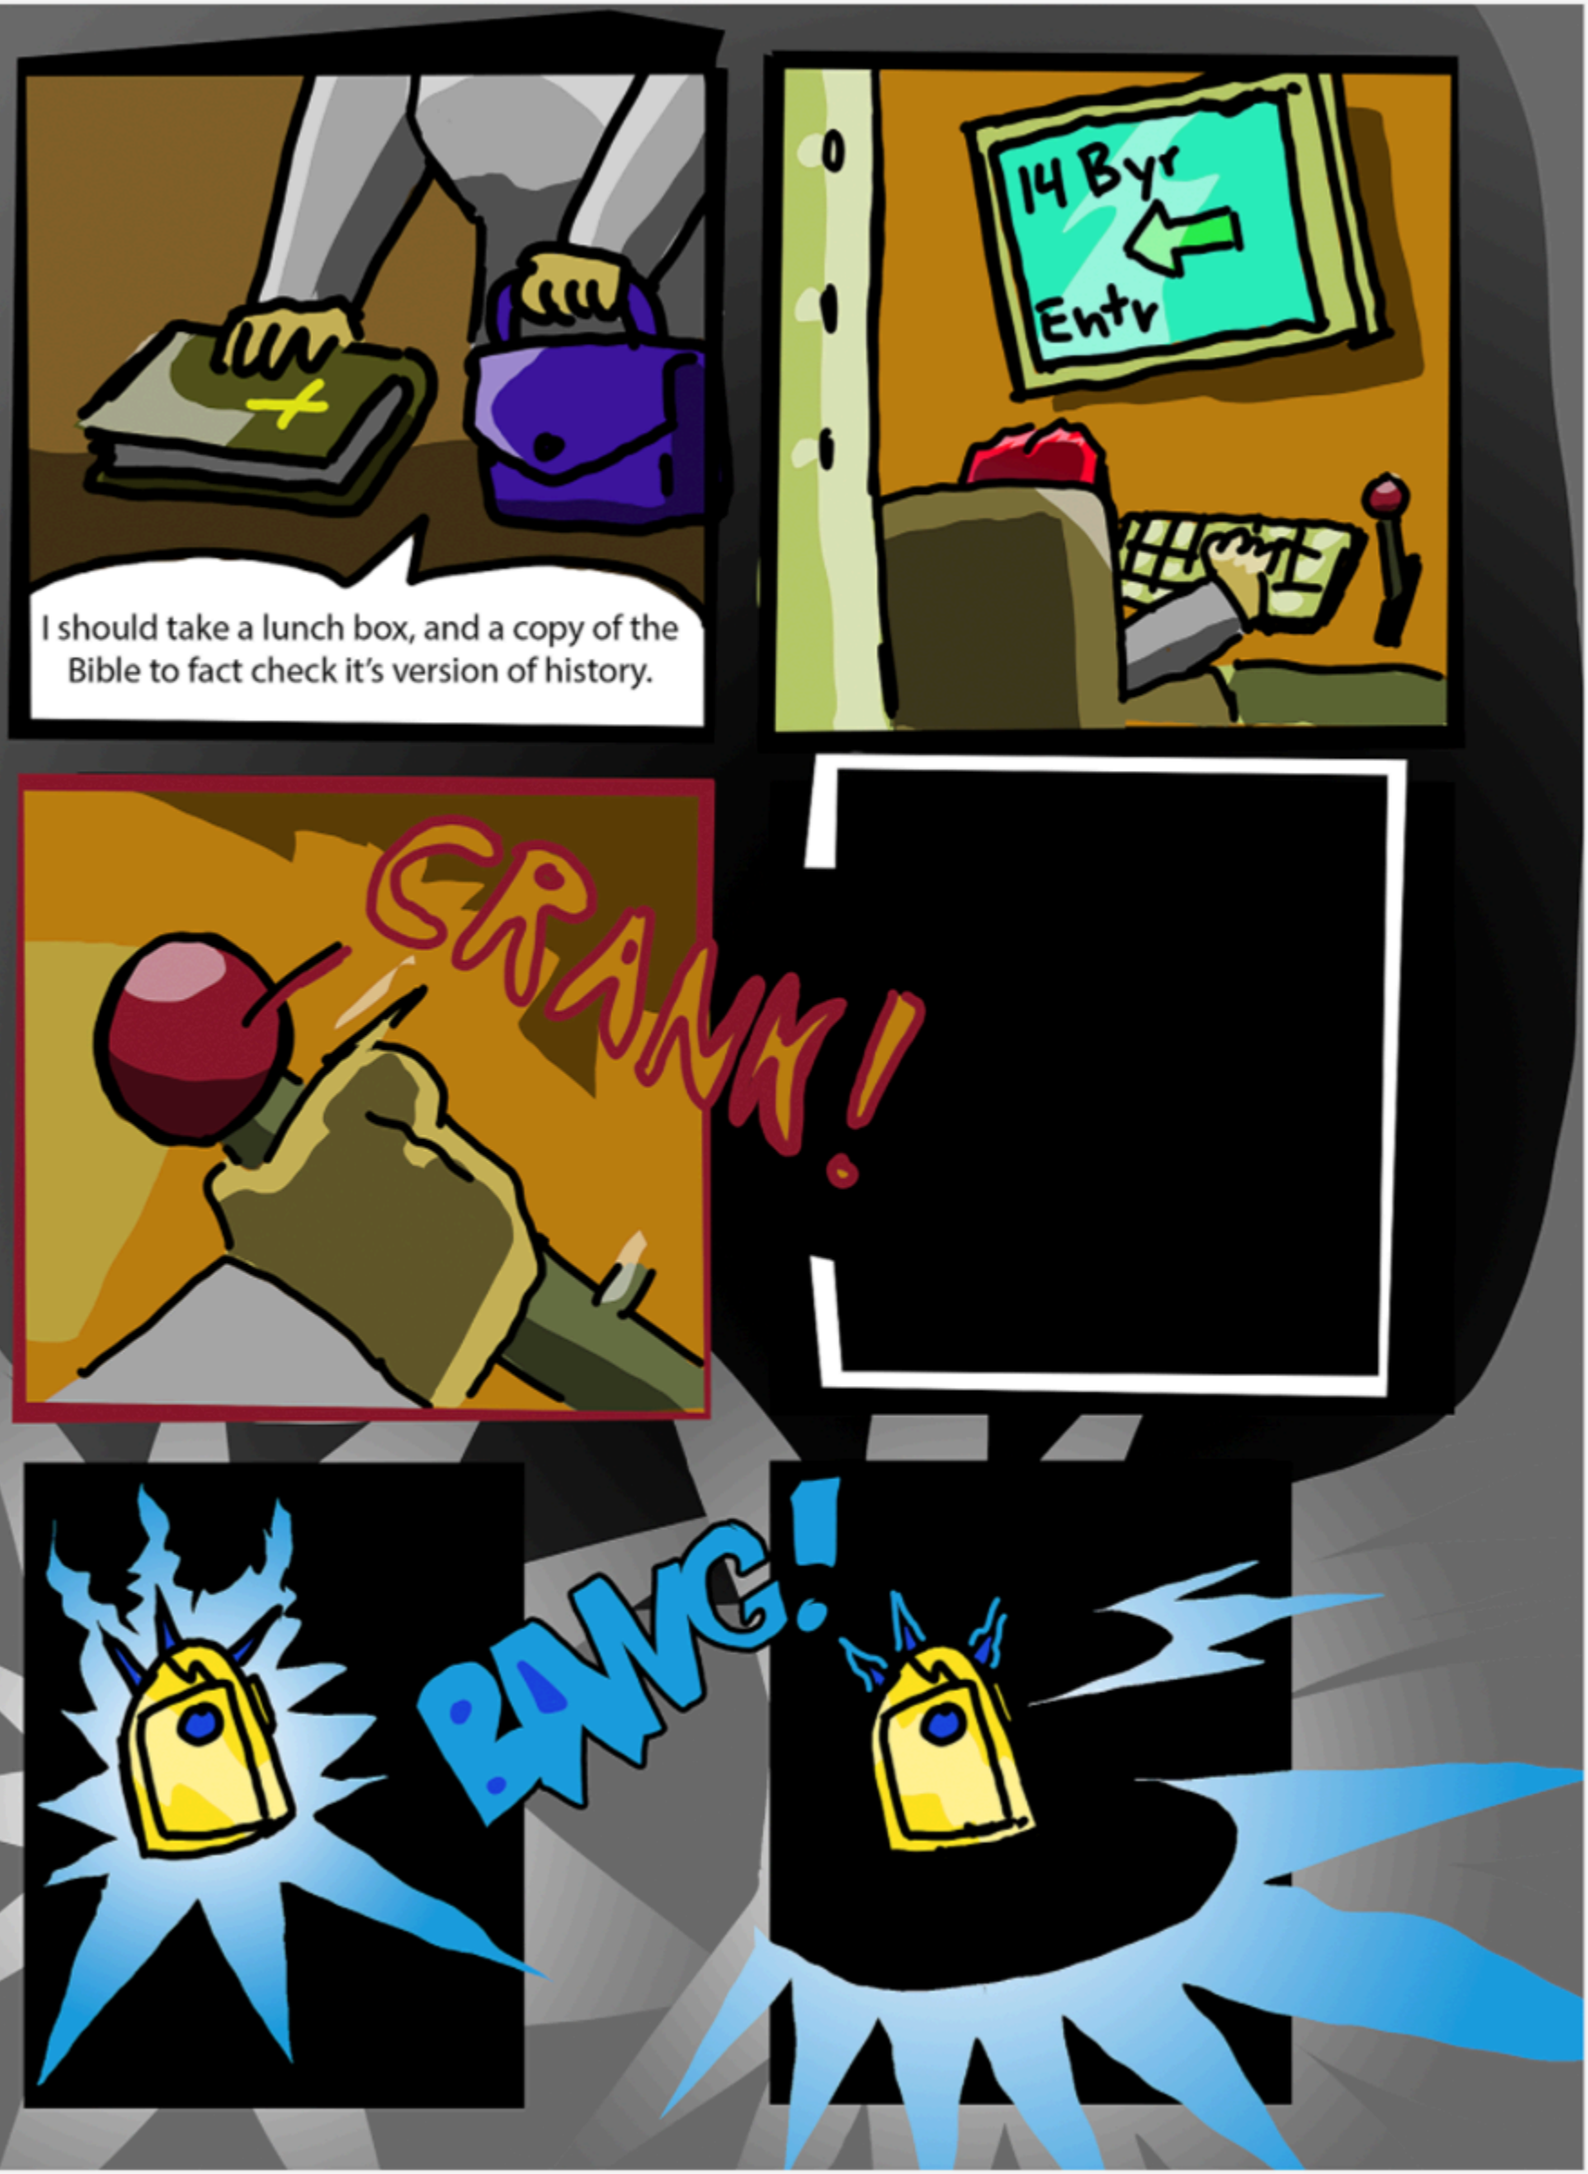
Everyone, Everything! In the world is derived from slow, unplanned evolution.
Everything in the world had to have had a moment of creation, and god is what caused that creation. We have copies of the bible from the 2nd century covering this.
Just because the universe had a starting point, that does not mean god started it.
Then what did? How could the universe have started without a conscious effort?
It just cre itself
Unless you can provide footage of the Universe starting on its own, it may as well have been created by God.
The crowd erupts with applause for Father. Z's arguments

How can I, Ms. Dr. Morales, a common astro physicist and awad winning temporal expert, prove that God did not create the universe? How would anyone find footage of the universe being



I should take a lunch box, and a copy of the Bible to fact check it's version of history.

It seems I have traveled to not just the beginning, but the exact center of the big bang. I can even see stars starting to form.
Let's travel a little further in time. See the beginning of man.

Wow! That must be the first fish to walk on land.

It's fascinating to see the causeless steps of evolution. No greater power pulling strings. Just nature taking its course.

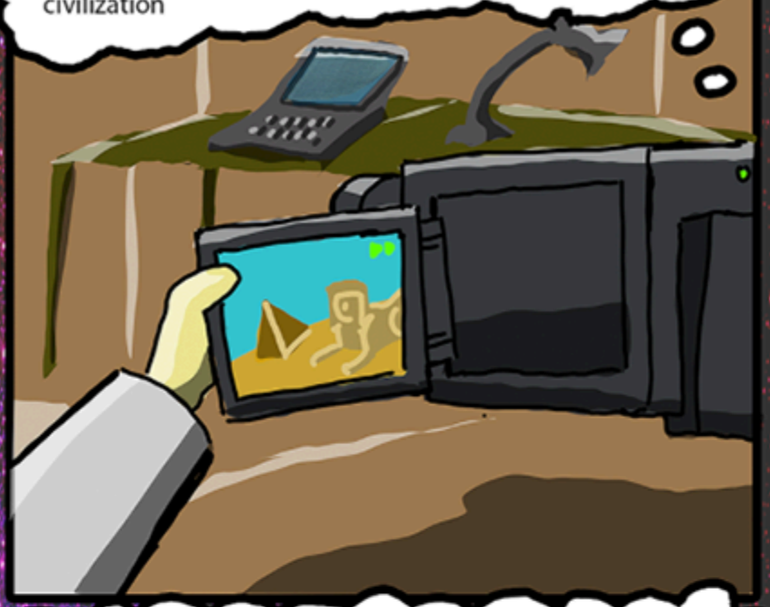
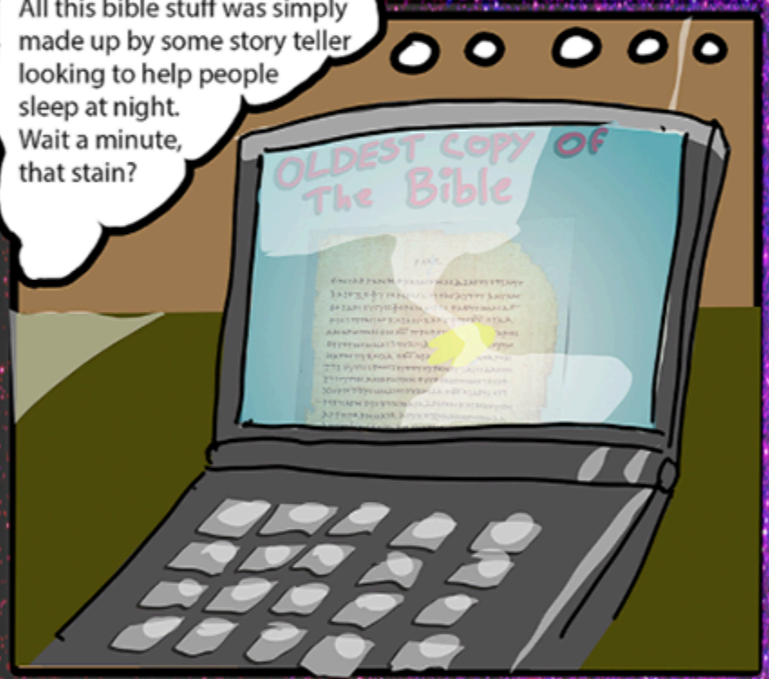
CRANK

I can't find a single recording showing acts of god. No sea splitting. No Apple of Knowledge. No resurrection of Jesus. Just the slow incremental evolution of life and human civilization



All this bible stuff was simply made up by some story teller looking to help people sleep at night. Wait a minute, that stain?



It can't be- That stain matches the stain of mustard i had on my pocket bible. Its the exact same place. I left that back in around one hundred common era. Does that mean...

The earth, All the universe and it's metric expansion, the myths of the bible, the seeds were all planted by me.

The reality I live in, its all created by me. I am the creater, the great father, allah, yahweh, the holy and divine, the almighty...

I am... God
